

Brad Dilday, MD completed residency at UAMS in 1999 and moved to Fayetteville, AR where he took a job with Arkansas Pathology Associates, a private group of 9 full-time pathologists that covers numerous hospitals in northwest Arkansas. He is currently medical director at Northwest Medical Center in Springdale, AR. He signs out all varieties of surgical and cytology specimens, working full-time and taking his share of weekend call.

Brad is married to Ginger, his wife of 20 years, and has 4 children (Taylor, McKenna, Elijah, and Shae) ranging in age from 3 to 16 years old. They are currently engaged in building a house. They spend lot of time watching Taylor play baseball, watching McKenna as youth praise team leader as well as fencing and archery lessons. His hobbies include tinkering with old cars, photography, and he has been on mission trips to Albania, Ukraine, Haiti and the Navajo Nation. The Dilday family just returned from a 2 week vacation to Italy where they visited many sites including Rome, Capri, the Amalfi Coast, Tuscany, and Florence. If you would like to catch up with Brad, he can be reached at brd@nwapath.com.
